White's Battalion.

We take from the Union, published at Luray, Page county, the following which will no doubt prove interesting reading to many of the "boys" in that gallant command, who survived the shock of war.

We are requested by Col. White to say that so far as he is concerned, the suggestion of Comrade Grayson as to a reunion of the surviving members of the battalion, is heartily approved, and he hopes the living members of his old command will interest themselves in the matter, and make the proposed reusion a grand success. The Union

Orderly Sergeant, Jacob C. Kibler, has recently handed us the last muster roll of Company E, of the 35th Battation of Virginia Volunteers, dated April. 1865 Having been a member of that little bard of men who were led by one whose nome has gone down in history, Col. E. V. White, we deem it a pleasure to publich the mames of the brave men of . E. who with their commander laid down their arms on that memorately day of the surrender of Gen. R. E. Lee at Appemattox.

"White's Battalion," as it was generally called, to which Co. E. formed a part, belonged to the famous Ross-r brigade, commanded by Gen. Thomas L. Rosser, composed of the 7th, 11 h, and 12th regiments and the 35th batalion of Virginia volunteers Com any E., was made up mostly of Page county men, and we find that many ave long since been called to and the battalion was in charge of Captain F. M. Myers. The annexed letter an exact copy of the letter from Col. White to Sergeant Kibler, declaring the battalion disbanded:

tle field.

Headquarters Deering's Brigade,

GADE .- In the absence of all orders from the Major General, commanding, I deem it a duty I owe to you to de-clare the brigade disbanded, and the members thereof at liberty to pursue what course their judgement dictates, as right and honorable. Under exist ing circumstances, your social conditions are so varied I cannot venture to advise you, but believe me, whatever you may do, or wherever you may go, you bear with you the highest respect of him who has had the honor to com-mand the gallant men of Ashby's old brigade. Allow me to thank you for the cheerful obedience you gave to my orders and for the gallant achievement you won, while under my command. Soldiers, you have done your duty and did it to the last. May God bless you. Farewell.

E. V. WHITE, Lieut. Col. Commanding Brigade. MEDIC:NAL.
